December 11, 1989

Dear Mr. Weisberg,

I hope all has been well the last two months since we last spoke. I am in the midst of my first set of finals in law school and so far all is going well. I am intending to be in your area during January 4-9. Hopefully we will be able to arrange a meeting. I would like to hear your evaluation of my paper and begin a discussion on my new project. I shall be leaving Albany for Long Island on December 23, so it would be better if you sent a response to this letter to my parent's home in Jericho. The address is below.

I spoke to Fletcher Prouty a few days ago. He has agreed to participate in my symposium, but unfortunately I cannot get anyone from the government to join in yet, so the future is a little bleak. But I do intend to meet with him in January as well which should prove to be very interesting.

I look forward to hearing from you and hopefully meeting with you within the month. I hope all is well and enjoy the holidays and a happy new year.

Respectfully,

Mark S. Zaid
